MANAGER

The new season provides Manager Harry Craft with his first opportunity to start a baseball year as a major league manager. He had just 50 days of full managerial responsibility last summer, but in '58 Craft will be the man in command from the opening day of Spring training.

Craft took over on August 6, 1957 and through the balance of the baseball year his team won 23 games, lost 27. This record measured up to all expectations and warranted his re-employment as manager for 1958. His insistence of hustle, his directness of speech, his all-consuming desire to win has established him as a man to be respected among his players. Work, hard work, has and always will be the fundamental ingredient in the baseball diet as presented by Craft. He played that way; he manages the same way.

Craft is a native of Ellisville, Mississippi, where he was born on April 19, 1915. After high school he attended Mississippi College where he played a halfback on the football team and in the outfield on the baseball team. He started his professional baseball career in the Cincinnati system with Monessen of the Pennsylvania state league in 1935. Just two years later he was playing for the Cincinnati Reds, remaining with them through the first part of the 1942 season. He participated in the 1939 and 1940 World Series.

Craft's playing days were concluded with the Kansas City Blues. In 1949 he started his career as a manager with the Yankee farm club at Independence, Kansas. His team won the K-O-M title and the next season most of the players and Craft were employed in Joplin, Missouri. Again a title with 90 wins and 46 losses for the Western Association title.

Two years at Beaumont, two years at Kansas City as manager of the Blues, and from 1955 until August, 1957, Craft was a coach for the Athletics.

Around the calendar Craft is consistently involved in outdoor activity — February through September it's all baseball, then from October to February it's hunting and fishing in Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas with hurried weekly trips to Kansas City to be a huntin' and fishin' television commentator.

THE COACHES

SPURGEON CHANDLER—For ten seasons "Spud" pitched for the Yankees and compiled a record of 109 wins, just 43 losses. He still possesses the tough-minded, competitive urge that made him an outstanding pitcher. Now in his second year as an A's coach he will be attempting to teach the same fundamentals that made him a successful competitor.

BOB SWIFT—Swift, also in his second year as a coach of the Athletics, is an old hand around the American League. His major league career extended over fourteen seasons as a catcher with St. Louis Browns, Philadelphia Athletics, and the Detroit Tigers. Swift has coached for the Tigers and managed at Albuquerque.

DON HEFFNER—Heffner starts his first season as a coach for the Athletics after a career of eleven major league years with the Yankees, St. Louis Browns, Philadelphia Athletics, and Detroit. In his playing days, "Jeep" was a shortstop, second baseman, and also played some at third. He will work with the infielders on the A's squad.

CONGRATULATIONS ON 50 YEARS OF SERVICE

Since 1908 thousands of major league baseball games have been played, hundreds of post season games have led teams to the pinnacle of sporting titles and the proud, singular honor as Baseball Champions of the World. Through all of this activity, some of it orderly and precise but at other times wild, loud and rugged, has evolved the ever present, closely allied adjunct to organized baseball, the Baseball Writers' Association of America. This year, 1958, is their 50th anniversary.

The press box has always been a spot of envy for people who shouldn't be in the enclosure. In former years it was the favorite vantage point for actors, barbers, saloon keepers, politicians—the outside guy who always wants to be in on the inside gossip—and it would probably still draw a goodly crowd from this sector of the sporting public if the committees of the BBWAA had not formulated rules, regulations and put them into effect. The press box is now the sanctum sanctorum for the members of the press who are working members of BBWAA. But this does not imply that the writer's home in the ball parks is a place of restful silence and scholarly debate. It does enjoy rare periods of silence, debate does go on, but it is carried on by men who have and are devoting their careers to the coverage of baseball, the liaison men between the action and the interested reading public.

The Athletics are relatively new to Kansas City and the sporting population surrounding the city in a seven-state area. The fans are genuinely interested in the A's. Their support at the turnstiles is proof of the statement. Newspapers, daily and weekly, have kept their readership current with game reports, rumors and counter-rumors that are all a part of the sport. People want to know about their team, about their players. The writers are meeting this demand.

The Athletics are grateful to all newspapermen and particularly to the Kansas City Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America. Our thanks to Ernie Mehl, Joe McGuff, Bob Busby and Paul O'Boynick of the Star; John Thomson of the Kansan; Johnnie Johnson of the Call; Frank Corrie, Skipper Patrick, and Frank Crawford of the Associated Press; Garrett Smalley of the Kansas City News Press; and Lyle Schwilling and Loy Edge of the United Press. These men work closely with the Athletics. We appreciate their continuing assistance and help. Again, our thanks.
